Philadelphia's Equality Forum 2007 to Feature United Nations
 04.18.07

Equality Forum, the national and international GLBT civil rights organization based in Philadelphia, is gearing up for its annual GLBT civil rights forum, Equality Forum 2007, set for April 30-May 6.

This year's event will include 60 programs, parties and special events in collaboration with approximately 65 regional, state, national and international organizations. There is no registration fee, and all substantive programs are free. In recent years the annual Equality Forum has featured Germany, Canada and China.

"Equality Forum 2007 offers a global perspective by highlighting the United Nations, with participation of the GLBT workplace organizations at the United Nations, World Bank, and European institutions," Malcolm Lazin, executive director of Equality Forum, said in a recent release.

A lead program will be "GLBT Rights as Human Rights," moderated by Jim Hormel, the first openly gay U.S. Ambassador, with panelists Congressman Barney Frank; Paula Ettelbrick, executive director, International Gay and Lesbian Human Rights Commission; and Scott Long,
